A NEW YEAR'S GREETING. Drop a tear on the bier of the dead old year,
And greet with a smile the new!
There is much to be hoped and little to fear
While our hearts are firm and true.
Day dawns at last, and the worst is past,
As we near the gladsome spring;
Soon summer with flowers will crown the hours,
And autumn her fruitage tling.

There's a silver lining to every cloud;
And the brave of heart, who stand
Unawed when the thunders bellow loud,
Are the saviours of our land!
At time to suis see doubts and doles
In our future, high and prood.
But the men for me are those who see
The silver that times the cloud!

Those Cloaks of velvet, or brown or black, Or purple, with dark thus dyes, Resemble in hue the cloudy rack Now diffing across the skies; But lift the edge of the brailed feld, And see how gally like! With satins of crimeon, plak and gold, Are those Cloaks by art designed.

By the art of ROBERTS, who stands alone
At the head of his branch of trade;
Whose Paleotos, Manties and Rasquesare known
Are the richest that ever were made!
So call at his store and FREIN THE YEAR
By buying instead of replaing;
And let this be a moral, dispelling all fear,
CLOARS AND CLOUDS HAVE A SILVER LINING!
